Cossack Leaves Russia Under
False Name

SETS PASSPORT
Goes To Study U.S.
Government Methods,
He Says

Traveling under an assumed name and carrying passports bearing the special visa of the State Department at Washington, Semenov, the spectacular Cossack leader who twice drove a band of men to the wall in Siberia, is now a fugitive from his native land, sailed from Shanghai for America Sunday by the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia.

The news of Semenov's long-expected departure for the States yesterday through channels of undoubted accuracy. No information would be vouchsafed by a steamship company, but close friends of the Cossack confirmed a report. Semenov has been in the North for several months, leaving Shanghai, and it was known that he was making strenuous efforts to secure the necessary travel papers for making a trip across the Pacific. It is understood that his passports were not issued by the American Consulate, nor by the Consulate at London, but that the authority for his journey came direct from Washington. His papers, it is understood, bear the ordinary British travel visa necessary for his journey to the States.

Semenov's ultimate destination and the purpose of his trip have been variously stated by himself and by his aides. Just before he left here, about three months ago, for Tientsin and Tsingtau, there he has been staying in seclusion, he issued a statement to the effect that he would visit America early this year for the purpose of studying American methods of government and in order to get in touch with members of his faction abroad. He would return in the Spring, he said, in time to take charge of the Siberian end of a Russia-wide anti-Soviet uprising. His Cossack army, he declared, was intact and waiting the word to rally again to his banner and the wires were laid for a crushing blow at the Reds.

Earlier, Semenov's agents have out the story that their leader would travel—possibly through the States—to France, where he would confer with the anti-Soviet chieftains of European Russia. Both of these programs are seen as possibilities by some members of the local Russian community, while others declare that the one-time Czar of the East-Baltic has resigned himself to the conclusion that his powers are ended and that he will never return to Siberia again.

Semenov is said to have come to Shanghai, in disguise and under an alias, shortly before the war was due to sail and that while here he stayed closely under cover at the home of a friend.

Thousands Flock To London For The Royal
Wedding

(Reuter's Service)
London, Feb. 27.—The President of China's gift consisted of a collection of numerous objects of jade and ivory and a pair of huge lacquer vases made at Poochow in 1770 by the order of the Emperor Kienlung, and was presented to Princess Mary this evening, who expressed her keen admiration.

London, Feb. 27.—Bright sunshine today revived the hopes, which the heavy rain of yesterday had quenched, that Princess Mary's wedding would be solemnized under favorable weather conditions.

An enormous throng of sight-seers is already crowding London. Thousands have arrived from all parts of the world, several hundred from the United States alone and many from France. Great numbers arrived during the week-end from the provinces, spending Sunday and today viewing the Abbey precincts and the processional route.

Numerous stands have been erected, but they will not be sufficient to meet the demand.

Princess Mary was still busy on Saturday receiving deputations and presents at Buckingham Palace.

Their Majesties held the last of the three wedding receptions at St. James Palace today. Everywhere the appearance of the Royal family has been greeted by remarkable demonstrations of loyalty and affection.

A number of seats have been allotted in Westminster Abbey by the Colonial Office to Dominions and Colonial Representatives.

Union Medical School To Cost Half Million Will Be Built Here

Project Abandoned By Rockefeller Foundation To Be Carried Out By Leading Mission And Educational Institutions

Measures are being taken to carry into realization the important project of establishing a Union Medical School in Shanghai. The enterprise is being undertaken by mission and educational bodies of East China and it is now virtually assured that a medical school will be erected at an estimated outlay of Gold $500,000 in the next several years.

For more than a quarter of a century St. John's University has had a medical department and its graduates are among the leading medical men of China. In the past Harvard and Pennsylvania Universities co-operated with St. John's University. At the time the Peking Union Medical College was being built by the Rockefeller Foundation an invitation was extended to the Foundation to found a medical school in Shanghai and this invitation was accepted.

By reason of this the Harvard School in China closed its doors, leaving the Pennsylvania-St. John's school the only one in Shanghai. Shortly after the Rockefeller Foundation announced its decision to abandon the plan for the Medical School in Shanghai, in 1920, the project to found a Union Medical school again was put forward and was discussed at a meeting of representatives of Nanking University, Soochow University, Hangchow Christian College, Shanghai College and St. John's University.

After a number of meetings and informal conferences with various mission boards in America the project was taken up by the Council on Medical Education of The China Medical Missionary Association and a committee was appointed to carry forward general arrangements. It was composed of Doctors C. H. Barlow, C. J. Davenport, C. E. Fullerton, J. E. Williams, J. F. Proctor, F. L. Hawks Pott, J. C. McCracken, Harriet Love and Miss E. M. Strow.

This committee on organization on which Doctor Pott was Chairman and Doctor McCracken, Secretary, worked out a plan of organization and prepared estimates for equipment and annual expenditure. A report was presented at a meeting of representatives of about twenty educational institutions and mission organizations.

The proposal advanced was that the school should be built and supported by major and minor units, a major unit to be any mission or institution contributing at least $25,000 gold for plant and $10,000 annually for staff and expenses, and a minor unit to be one-half of a major unit. It was estimated that land and buildings would cost a half million gold dollars and the annual running expenses would be about $100,000 gold. It was considered, however, that only $300,000 would be required for plant and equipment in the first five years.

The proposals and the general scheme then were presented to all the main mission bodies and to the various educational institutions, all of which were asked to co-operate and appoint representatives to carry on the project which now is assured of realization.

The Chief Executive of China trusted that the Marshal had found considerable improvement in the national life of China since his visit 35 years ago. Much of the improvement, he said, was due to the mingling of French and Chinese civilizations. This is evidenced, the President said, by the many Chinese students who are now pursuing high courses of studies in French educational institutions, by which the people of China are greatly benefited.

(Mr. Shen Jui-lin, former Minister to Vienna, acted as interpreter.)

Marshal and Madame Joffre were then entertained at a dinner by President and Mrs. Hsu. The music played during the function was the classic that is only used for sacrifices to Confucius. Other guests at the party were the French Minister and the Chinese Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Finance, Navy, Justice and Interior as well as the Chief of the General Staff.

Monday morning, Marshal Joffre went sight-seeing to the Summer Palace, accompanied by representatives of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. He was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Japanese Legation and at a dinner at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the evening. This was followed by a ball.

Famous French Soldier Conveys Greetings Of Millerand To Hsu; Lauds China For Part In World War, And For Ancient Civilization

By a Staff Correspondent of the CHINA PRESS

Peking, Feb. 27.—Formal exchange of greetings between Marshal Joffre and President Hsu took place at the Hual Jen Tang yesterday at noon. Marshal Joffre stated that China had endeared herself to France by her participation in the world war and through her ancient civilization. He had visited Peking and Tientsin about 35 years ago and felt that the land was not unfamiliar to him at all. The Marshal then conveyed the formal greetings of President Millerand to President Hsu.

Crown Colony Government Declares Port Will Be

Civilian Constables And Police sworn In To Aid Army And Navy; 170 Ships In Harbor

By Cable to THE CHINA PRESS

Hongkong, Feb. 22.—The shipping strike that has been in progress here for seven weeks was tremendously aggravated today by a sympathetic walkout of cooks and other domestic servants. Forty cooks at the Hongkong Hotel failed to appear at their posts this morning, and by noon there was an exodus of five thousand cooks, houseboys, amahs and coolies, all of whom left for Canton. All the guilds have announced a complete suspension of work, which, if carried out, will mean a complete paralysis of the port.

In the meantime the Hongkong government remains steadfast in its determination not to treat with the strikers, and has let it become known that the industries of the port will be operated without Cantonese, if necessary. Army and navy officers and men are standing by, their strength having been augmented by large numbers of civilian constables and police. The government has assured the residents of Hongkong that the food supplies of the port will not be interfered with.

Chinese merchants here and at Canton estimate that the losses caused by the strike to date aggregate forty million dollars. One hundred and seventy ships are now tied up in the harbor.

Hongkong, Feb. 23.—A military cordon has been stationed on the frontier. Detachments of soldiers are posted at convenient centers as a standby. The port is now closed.

Hongkong, Feb. 23.—An emergency meeting of the Legislative Council today enacted an ordinance giving the Governor-in-Council the power in cases of emergency or public danger to make regulations desirable in the public interest.

TALK REVIVES OF SEAMEN'S STRIKE REACHING S'HA

Shipping Firms Not Alarmed, Despite Many
Rumors

The talk of the Hongkong seamen's strike spreading up the coast to Shanghai had a sharp recrudescence yesterday in the Chinese guilds, shipping honks and tea houses following receipt of private telegrams to shipping companies telling of the imminence of a general walk-out of various trades being called in the Colony.

Officials of the shipping firms, however, were inclined to give little attention to the rumored danger of the strike breaking out locally, though nearly all conceded the increased gravity of the situation in the South.

The Canadian Pacific Steamships "ghost ship," Empress of Japan, which has already taken one batch of strikebreakers to Hongkong and which slipped quietly into the offing at Woosung again on Monday afternoon, is still lying offshore, without having taken aboard any more laborers. It was reported from authentic sources yesterday afternoon. The steamship company declined to give out any information, or to confirm the Japan's presence, but it was presumed that the ship is awaiting word of developments in Hongkong before making any further move. It is understood that local agencies are prepared to despatch some 1,800 men Southward, including 1,000 dock laborers, but the word has not yet come to put them aboard ship.

The position of the Brokers' Association, however, remained unchanged during the day. Mediation was going on. Several reports of alleged settlement by the vendors of the shares agreeing to compensate the purchasers were denied by the management of the exchange, which stated that no reduction in the value of the shares was possible unless a complete compromise is reached by the brokers.

The continuation of transactions in cotton, cotton yarn and gold exchange by the Chartered Stock and Produce Exchange as well as a firm tone in all the business done yesterday helped to give Shanghai's financial market somewhat a stabilizing influence despite the delay of the brokers of the exchange in arriving at a compromise. Exchange officials last night were optimistic about the prospects of an early settlement of the crisis among the brokers and expected that the usual business in shares will be resumed at an early date.

Hongkong, Feb. 23.—The strike situation has become worse owing to the guilds having intimated that cooks and houseboys in European employ must come out in sympathy. Domestic in European service have notified their employers that they are leaving for Canton this evening.

Without notice, bakers, pastry-cooks and coolies employed in bakeries and restaurants, today went out on strike.

Hongkong, Feb. 23.—With a view to preventing Chinese from going to Canton the railway service has ceased. The Chinese domestic have declared their determination to walk as far as Samshun, the border of the British territory, where they will entrain in the Chinese section of the railway for Canton.

GLEN LINE OPENS HANDSOME NEW HOME ON BUND

Many Present For Ceremony In Veteran Firm's Fine 5-Story Block

The handsome new five-story building of the Glen Line Eastern Agencies, Ltd., at the corner of The Bund and Peking Road, was thronged with prominent Shanghaiers foreign and Chinese, yesterday from 11:30 a.m. until 1 o'clock on the occasion of the official opening of the premises.

The inaugural address was delivered by Mr. H. H. Fox, Commercial Counsellor to the British Legation, who paid sincere and flattering tribute to the work of the Glen Line in the Commercial upbuilding of Shanghai. The new building, he said, was not only an object of pride for the city but constituted a fine monument to British enterprise in the Far East. He proposed a toast to the firm's prosperity and success of the company.

Following the address the guests were taken over the building, visiting the various and examining the up-to-date equipment and conveniences.

The Glen Line Eastern Agencies' offices occupy the entire ground floor of the building and the first floor is occupied by offices of Messrs. R. S. Boyd and Co., Messrs. Silber, Hegner and Co., having the entire west wing of the second story. The whole of the third floor is occupied by the United Services Association, Messrs. Thornton and Co. and the Norwegian Lloyd Insurance Co., while on the fourth floor are the offices of the Far Eastern Agency of Furness, Limited, and E. Navan. On the fifth floor are located Messrs. Pearce and Carlick, architects, the W. Craig-Martin Insurance Co., the Canadian National Railway offices, Dr. Irons and Mr. C. S. Franklin.

EARLY IN FIELD

The Glen Line has figured largely in the romance of British trade in the Far East, inasmuch as the Founder of the Company, Mr. James McGregor, conceived the idea of sending steamers to China to carry the tea to Great Britain which was then loaded by the famous China clipper, the names of some of which, such as the Cutty Sark, Forward Ho, Thermopylae, still live. Mr. McGregor sent out Glenartney in 1874, and this steamer carried to London the first season's tea from Hankow from that year to 1880, the Glenline carrying the first season's tea in 1882-3-4. During these years the Glen Line not only won the blue ribbon for speed, but gave a great impetus to the building of fast merchant vessels, a class of steamer which, up to that time, had not been constructed.

In 1884 the Glenline and the Glenlineas were present at the bombardment of Pagoda Anchorage, Poochow, and, under the protection of the French fleet, they were used as refuge ships for the stricken people from the shore. The Glenartney, in 1887, rescued the whole of the passengers and crew of the Mei Kong, which was wrecked on Cape Gardful, on which occasion hostile natives had to be kept at bay with loaded rifles.

As a result of the initiative of Mr. James McGregor, the Glen Line was in the front rank of companies trading to the East. As trade grew the Company kept pace with it.

The excellent passage made at the end of 1920 by the new motor vessel Glenogrie (which is the third vessel owned by the Company bearing this historic name) will be fresh in the memory of Shanghai residents. This vessel, of 12,300 tons deadweight, with two 8-cylinder Harland and Wolff Diesel engines of 6,000 I. H. P., averaged 13.50 knots from London to Shanghai.

Peking Objects To Tuchun's Salt Tax

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 25.—The Ministry of Finance has telegraphed to General Hsiao Yao-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, pointing out that the levy of $1 per picul of salt, which the Tuchun is imposing, is a breach of the Salt Gabelle Regulations and in direct conflict with the obligations undertaken by the Central Government in connection with the Reorganization Loan. The Ministry informed General Hsiao that this so-called surtax must be abolished immediately. As regards the payment of troops the full responsibility rested with the Ministry of Finance.

Szechuen Road Bridge Is Engineer's Subject

Yesterday afternoon before a meeting of the Engineering Society of China held at the Royal Asiatic Society rooms, Mr. A. F. Gimson read a paper on "The Foundations of Szechuen Road Bridge. With Some Reference to the Bearing Value of Piles." The paper in part follows:

In general design the structure consists of longitudinal girders running from each abutment, and cantilevered beyond the piers for some 30 feet. They are connected by steel plate girders which rest freely on the ends of the cantilevers. This type of design is necessarily heavy, and the arrangement of the central spans of 120 feet and two approach spans of 57 feet each, brings almost the entire load on to the piers. Under certain conditions of live load, which are theoretically possible but practically very improbable, the load on the abutment vanishes and may become an upward pull of small amount.

It is clearly seen that any settlement of the piers would be magnified at the ends of the cantilevers, where it would produce unpleasant inflexions in the road surface, and destroy the curved contour of the bridge. To prevent this occurring the load was reduced by designing the piers hollow, of reinforced concrete, with a spread base supported on piles on which the loading intensity was kept down to 150 lbs. per square foot of pile surface.

In order to avoid excessive constriction of the fairway in a creek where the traffic is already very congested, it was necessary to construct one half of the bridge at a time, and to remove the staging from under it before erecting it on the other side.

For the construction of the pier, excavation had to be carried down 27 feet below maximum high water, and a steel sheet pile cofferdam was decided on. It was desired to arrange for the driving of all the foundation piles and the construction of the base, without moving any of the bracing within the dam, and also to avoid the use of divers and the uncertainty attaching to their work.

To effect this the site was excavated by dredger to a level of 7.5 below Conservancy datum, and a crib of timber was bolted together, floated into place and sunk in position. The sheet piles were driven from the top of the pier, and designed to enable it to negotiate the corners without the erection of staging outside.

These sheet piles are of arched web section with a bead and channel joint, and light in comparison with their transverse strength, giving a weight of only 33 lbs. per square foot of dam surface.

The first attempt to pump out the dam after driving the closing pile produced no effect on the head of water inside. This was discovered to be due to slight lack of alignment, which on driving the last pile had forced the head out of the channel, and as this occurred below low water it was of course not noticed. This was put right by withdrawing the last five or six piles and sliding them into position before commencing to drive.

The typhoon of August 24 brought the tide over the top and flooded the dam but did no harm to the construction.

There is one curious point in connection with the hollow pier which may be mentioned. It is impracticable to entirely prevent the leakage of water from without when the walls are liable to collision from heavy barges; at the same time it is advisable, if possible, to avoid the variations of load on the pier due to rise and fall of the tide, but if the tide is freely admitted by drainage holes, the mud in suspension will settle through the stagnant water and ultimately fill the pier. To deal with this a 6 inch layer of porous concrete was placed in the walls just above the base.

It has been discovered, however, that a pile driver itself is unnecessary, as the piles can be simply pulled down into place. Their penetration below the bottom of the creek is 23 feet and all that is required is the simple arrangement of tackle operated by a steam winch. It is rather quicker than using a pile driver, and is quite free from any danger of brooming the pile.

The whole problem of increasing the loading intensity on foundations has an important bearing in connection with high buildings, as well as in polder work. Some recent work on the subject in America confirms the view that the earth when under stress behaves as an elastic solid of low strength. On the removal of a load from a pile, the elasticity breaks down, and reloading is necessary before the elastic condition can be again obtained. The rebound and settlement under load variation was well illustrated by the tests carried out by the Whangpoo Conservancy and described in a Paper before the Society in 1917, and the settlement of piled structures subjected to variation of load is doubtless due to this cause.

What is required is a knowledge of the extent of the variation of load which is possible without breaking down the elastic state, for this knowledge would remove the uncertainty that exists in designing foundations for these conditions.

An interesting discussion followed the reading of the paper.

Lurton, United States Marshal for China, and formerly Commissioner of the United States Court for China at Shanghai, has resigned his post here with the government and announces his intention of going in for the private practice of law in Shanghai. He is opening offices at No. 97 Szechuen Road.

Mr. Lurton was admitted to the practice of law by the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri in 1911 and practiced in St. Louis, Mo., for five years. He first came to China as a member of the American delegation for the China Tariff Revision Commission, which convened in Shanghai in 1918.

During the latter part of that year Mr. Lurton was appointed Commissioner of the local court, which appointment he held until taking home leave in 1920, when Mr. T. J. Schuhl took the office.

On returning to Shanghai in June of last year Mr. Lurton was appointed Acting Clerk of the Court by Judge C. S. Lobinger until Mr. W. A. Chapman received his appointment from Washington. Harbin, Feb. 28.—Searches were made by the military authorities in various parts of the town today, chiefly institutions connected with China, including the Delta News Agency offices and the residence of the China representative, Mr. Osorin.

The object of the search was to discover arms rumored to be stored in the town.

The search was resultless and was connected with the recent discovery of arms in Manchukuo Station. The event has created considerable commotion and is largely commented on.

Irish Conference 'Very Satisfactory'

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 27.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Winston Churchill stated that the result of the Irish Conference at the Colonial Office was very satisfactory and most reassuring. The South Irish Ministers had in no way weakened in their determination to carry out the Treaty entirely.

Their opposition towards the Republicans was unabated but they had deferred to the strong Sinn Fein demand that the constitution as well as the Treaty should be submitted to the Irish electorate. The result would be a delay of the election till early in June. The position of the British Government or of the Treaty was not affected. There was no reason to change the British policy. The evacuation of British troops would continue.

The committee stage of the Irish Bill will be taken on Thursday and Friday and further stages next week.

China's Industrialism Just Starting, Says Lee

Dr. Frédéric E. Lee, Economist, Consul-General here for economic investigation work in China, spoke to the students of Soochow University and Middle School combined last Friday morning on "The Industrialization of China—its Benefits and its Dangers."

In speaking of the different stages through which civilisations and peoples pass, the speaker pointed out that when Chinese history began the ancestors of the present Chinese race were passing from the pastoral stage to the agricultural in the more or less swampy lands of Kansu, Shensi and Honan Provinces. They had doubtless acquired the rudiments of agriculture in contact with the great civilisations of Western Asia and Eastern Europe and from about 2500 B. C. they have been mainly an agricultural people, or as the title of King's book indicates, "Farmers for Forty Centuries."

"It is only in very modern times," continued the speaker, "that the Chinese have, in a sense, begun to pass from the purely agricultural stage to the agricultural-industrial. Even yet the development of industries in China is only beginning. Yet when we survey what has been done we can safely say that the industrialization of China has already begun."

"The statement has been made that in the economic organization of the country less than one-half of one percent of the needs of the population of China are met by machine production or machine labor, the great masses of the people of China are yet living on a home industry or hand labor basis. In 16,000 miles of travel in China I have seen no reason to doubt the general accuracy of this statement."

CHANGE APPARENT
"But this condition is beginning to change," said Dr. Lee. "Although cotton has been known to the Chinese people since about 2200 B. C., in the reign of Yu, the first modern cotton spinning mill was established in China in 1893, thirty years ago, at Shanghai. In 1891 there were 2 cotton mills in China with 65,000 spindles. At the close of 1921, thirty years later there were 92 cotton mills in operation with 2,692,046 spindles employing 72,307 laborers in the 73 Chinese owned mills alone."

"There are now about 125 modern flour mills in China, 21 of which are in Shanghai. These Shanghai mills have a daily output in round numbers of 100,000 fifty-pound bags. It is also reported that there are 445 glass factories in China, and sugar mills also are rapidly increasing."

If this process of industrialization is to continue in China the speaker stated that certain factors were necessary to bring it about. The first of these was that before any considerable degree of industrialization could take place even in a country with tremendous natural resources like China, adequate and unified transportation facilities must be established. He pointed out that no single influence played so great a part in the economic history of the United States and in the development of American industries as transportation.

AWAITS TRANSPORTATION
"Likewise, China's greater economic and industrial development will come when adequate transportation facilities shall have been established."

"Another factor which must be considered in the development of an under-industrialized country, such as China," stated the speaker, "is the problem of finance. But the financing of under-industrialized nations should not in any degree impair their sovereignty or their economic or financial independence."

Speaking of the benefits which ought to come to China with its industrialization, Dr. Lee pointed out four of such benefits. The first of these would be a greater security for life, liberty and property for an industrial society develops one of its characteristics is that we have a social order in which the State exists for the protection of the individual rather than one in which the individual and his property exist solely for the benefit of the State.

A second benefit would be that

ROMA SURVIVORS GIVE DETAILS OF DIRIGIBLE'S FALL

(Chung Mei Service)
Norfolk, Feb. 27.—Experts are now examining the twisted frame and six Liberty motors, all that remains of the Dirigible Roma, which dove to the ground near Hampton Roads. Thirty-three bodies have been taken from the wreckage, burned beyond all chance of identification.

All eye witnesses agree that the wreck was caused by the derangement of the stern rudder as the airship approached the Hampton Roads Air Station. The spectators saw the rudder, which is itself as large as a bombing plane, suddenly drop out of place, and the great air ship begin to dive toward the ground from an altitude of about one thousand feet. The crew were seen frantically throwing ballast overboard, but after a slight upward turn the Roma continued to dive.

As she neared the ground two men were seen to leap from the slanting hull; then others were seen to drop from doors and from holes that they tore in the fabric sides. Some leaped from the engine platform, which stood far out from the hull.

When the ship hit the ground she capsized, trapping the occupants, who had no chance to escape because of the flames that broke out at once. The fire was not extinguished for many hours, three fire departments having worked on it with chemicals.

If the pilots could have held the nose of the Roma up for a few hundred yards more, the ship would have dropped into the bay, and the resulting damage would have been comparatively slight. Major Reardon, who was in charge of the control cabin said of the officers in charge, that their work was of the highest order.

"Lieutenant Burt and Captain Mabry were at the wheel of the airship when the disaster happened," he said. "The ship gave a duck and I saw Burt pull with all his might on the elevation levers. They would not respond and he yelled 'he won't respond' and then cut the motors off. I heard them stop one by one. Then we struck. If the motors had not been shut off it would have been much worse."

Engineer Biedenbach, one of the few who escaped, described his remarkable survival:

"When we hit the ground," he said, "there was an explosion. I was pinned down; the fabric was over me and all around me. I wanted the fabric to burn so that I could get out, and all the time I was afraid that the big gas envelope behind us would explode. But it did not. The fire reached the fabric first. If it had not I would never have got out alive."

The investigation of the disaster, which is the biggest in the history of American aeronautics, began at once with the arrival of Army Air Service officers from Washington.

Intense Activity Among Tsingtau Lease Holders

(China Press Correspondence)
Tsingtau, Feb. 25.—Intense activity among lease holders and in the land office has been going on for about a week. It was authoritatively announced from the Yamen that leases would have until February 25, to apply for the purchase of lands on which they had built houses. The limit of time for payments was March 31, the end of the Japanese fiscal year.

The date of this proposed sale has been moved up twice, under some powerful impulsion. Evidently the outcome of the Washington Conference included some surprises for the administration, and they are moving things in a hurry. From the first date, March 31, it was changed to March 15, then to Feb. 25. Many lease holders had very short time to consider what ought to be done.

Today it is reported that a message from Tokio has put a stop to the sale of these lands. This has not been from inside purpose, it is plain; the alternative is that outside pressure has shown Tokio that after the decision of the Conference to return Tsingtau it would be wholly unfair to conduct these wholesale disposals of land over which their control was almost gone, and at best was only nominal, viz., that of military occupation, and on supposedly friendly soil. The Chinese here have many leases, but they were and are much opposed to the purchase of lands from Japan, as they say the money simply goes to Japan, whereas if a few months pass that money by rights would belong to China. An extravagant administration for some time has had hard work to make ends meet; it is sincerely hoped that a saner and more economical administration can soon be organized.

But it is not recognised as clearly as it ought to be that the most important thing for users of stimulants to consider is the quality of the stimulant used.

There are three things to consider in selecting your brand of Whisky:

1. The article that is distilled (Barley).
2. The method of distillation (pot still).
3. The length of time it has remained in bond to eliminate objectionable properties.

In each of these particulars HAIG & HAIG claim that they have reached the highest standard yet attained in the Whisky world.

Amtraco Beat 'Y' 41-31 In Last Foreign League Game

Successful Season Ends With Fairly Close Game At Y.M.C.A.

With the exception of one postponed game between the Bowdies and Pearson Daniel fives, of no importance to the standings and not likely to be played off, the Foreign Basketball League season was completed last night, when the Amtraco team defeated the "Y" aggregation at the Y.M.C.A. by a score of 41-31. There remains now only the play-off to decide the first position honors of the league, tied now with the Bearcats and the Strokekide each standing at 17 games won and 1 lost.

The game last night had all the marks of an end-of-the-season contest. The Amtraco played a changed lineup to fill in absentees. Nichols worked at center and scored 13 points from the position. Van Hook, the last of the old "Y" team played forward and scored nothing against his pupils. Armstrong, the last of the Anderson, Meyer five, played the off forward for ten baskets. He was the big scorer of the game.

Shipley at forward and Smith at center scored the bulk of the "Y" points in spite of heavy guarding, and Squires and Hager added enough more to make the game fairly close. Waters from the American School team played at guard for the "Y".

The score at half time was Amtraco 26, "Y" 21.

The summary follows:

Amtraco 41.—Van Hook 12, Armstrong 11, Nichols 13, Kline 12, Young 12.

Y.M.C.A. 31.—Shipley 12, Squires 11, Smith 11, Hager 12, Waters 12.

Goals from floor—Armstrong 10, Nichols 6, Kline 1, Young 3, Shipley 4, Squires 2, Smith 4, Hager 4. Goals from fouls—Nichols 1, Shipley 2, Smith 1.

ARMY TEAM WINS TRACK AND FIELD MEET AT MANILA

Manila.—The United States Army team won the P. A. A. F. open track and field meet, with a total of 74 points. The Bureau of Education finished second with 59 points. Four P. A. A. F. records were broken and one was tied. Catalog of the Bureau of Education and Duff of the U. S. Army were the high individual point winners of the meet with ten each.

Perhaps the closest and most interesting event of the two days was the mile-relay which closed the meet last evening. The Bureau of Education athletes won first place by a scant few yards, the Army coming second and the University pulling up the rear a poor third. Catalog for the Bureau secured a five-yard lead in the first lap over James, who ran for the Army team. In the second lap Barnes of the Army picked up a few yards on Quinola, who was not in the best of condition. The third lap was one of the prettiest of the races, Bridges, the Army runner, overtaking Hipona at the half-way point, only to be beaten out at the finish by the little Filipino. In the final lap Lopez and Duran held their respective positions, the latter breasting the tape three yards ahead of the Army man. The time, 3 minutes and 32 seconds, was just one-fifth of a second short of the P. A. A. F. record made by the U. S. Army team in February, 1921.

Hipona broke the first P. A. A. F. record yesterday morning when he ran the 880-yard in 2 minutes and 51.5 seconds. The former record of 2 and 61.5 seconds was made by S. N. Melbrook of the U. S. Army in February, 1921.

The second record of the day was made in the 120-yard high hurdles when Amad of the Bureau of Education broke his own mark of 16.3 seconds, made in February, 1921. Amad's time yesterday was 16.1 seconds.

Alo of the Bureau of Education broke both his intercollegiate and P. A. A. F. records in the pole vault when he grazed the bar at 11 feet, 9 1/2 inches. The thin stick trembled for an instant but did not fall and Alo had a new record.

(China Press Correspondence)
Tientsin, Feb. 25.—In a Boxing Gala Night to be held in Gordon Hall here on March 10 Fighting George B. Razeo, of the 15th U. S. Infantry, who has established a reputation on the American Pacific Coast as "Knockout Razeo" meets Mike F. S. Frie, of the U. S. Marine Corps of Peking in a 10-round go for the Middleweight Championship of North China. The bout is the feature of a good card.

Razeo has never been seen in action in public here but he shows to good advantage in training, and he has a record of 15 victories. Frie is a trifle lighter, but is rated as the best man in his class in the entire Marine Corps.

The semi-final will be between Battling Frank Ortega of the 15th, and Jack R. Kelly of the Peking Marines at 148 pounds to six rounds.

The amateur wrestling title for North China will be decided between Lieut. A. Neill of the Marines and Mr. Fred Grimes of Tientsin. Both men have good reputations as mat artists, the former through a long army career, and the latter while in the service during the war and since in several amateur bouts.

The card also lists the following bouts:
Mr. James B. Farmer of Peking vs. Joseph W. Stout of the 15th, four rounds; Homer A. Ferguson, U. S. A. vs. Theodore Bates 15th Inf., four rounds, and an exhibition of jiu-jitsu by a Japanese and a Welshman, citizens of Tientsin.

Few Race Horses Are Left In Russia

Riga, Friday, Feb. 3.—Horse racing, formerly the most popular sport in Russia, is now attempting to come back after 98 percent of all the blooded livestock has been killed, according to William and Samuel Caton, the sons of Frank Caton, now living in Cleveland, O. Both men entered Russia in 1919 and remained until now as the soviet government was loath to permit them to leave because it wanted their services in increasing the livestock.

William declared that trotting races are now being run in Petrograd and Moscow. He said that out of 250,000 blooded trotters in Russia before the revolution only 4,762 remain; of 100,000 English thoroughbreds less than 200 remain and that of the common livestock less than 25 percent is still living.

After the revolution William left Moscow for Siberia, where he continued breeding racers. He said the soviet made him commissar of Siberia for blooded stock. He held races in Omsk and Tomsk last fall, giving a part of the proceeds to the Volga famine sufferers.

Samuel remained on his large breeding farm in the Novgorod district. He did not taste meat in two years nor bread in one year. He has married a Russian and plans to return to his new land.

Record Salary Named In M'Graw's New Contract

Giants' Leader Signs Up For $325,000 For Next Five Years

New York, Feb. 8.—John J. McGraw has signed a five-year contract to manage the Giants at a yearly salary said to be $65,000, a total of $325,000 for his duties during the term of agreement made with President Charles A. Stoneham. This is the highest salary ever paid a player or manager.

When McGraw came to New York in July, 1902, it was said he was paid a salary of $5,000, which in those days was considered a big price. Twenty years later finds him earning thirteen times as much, beside being the third biggest stockholder in the Giants.

When, back in 1912, it was announced that the owners of the Giants had signed McGraw for a salary calling for $18,000, the baseball world was startled. In 1915 Harry Hempstead boosted the salary to $30,000, and baseball folks gasped. It was predicted this would be the top salary for all time in the national game. But in 1917 McGraw demanded more money and Hempstead finally boosted the figure to $50,000. That contract terminated the first of this year.

McGraw, who was born at Truxton, N. Y., April 7, 1873, began playing professional baseball with the Olean (N. Y.) club in 1890, and the following year joined the Cedar Rapids team. Before the end of the season he was acquired by Baltimore and played second base. When Ed

Strokeside And Bearcats May Play Off Tie On Friday

The play-off for first position in the Foreign Basketball League between the Bearcats and the Strokekide in all likelihood will be set for Friday evening of this week. The Rowing Club men are suggesting that date to the Bearcats and in view of the need for an early date it is quite likely that the Strokekide's suggestion will be accepted.

The Rowing Club men commencing Monday devote all of their energies to the racing shells and training for the spring regatta and are not inclined to enter into a lengthy post-season basketball series at this time, wishing rather to let the honor for 1921-22 basketball go to the winner of one more game. The Bearcats while greatly weakened by Dr. Gray's absence and Hirsch's injury are not in a position to play their average best game at the present time, but it is believed that they will accede to the popular demand for a play-off rather than leave the league title tied up for a full year.

Hanlon took charge of the Orioles in 1892 he shifted McGraw third, which position he played (Continued on Page 6) until he came to New York as manager.

In 1900 McGraw and Wilbert Robinson, now manager of the Dodgers, were sold to the St. Louis National League club. In 1901 these men formed the Baltimore American League club. But McGraw and Ban Johnson couldn't get along, and while under suspension, John jumped to the Giants.

He brought along with him Roger Bresnahan, Joe McGinnity, Dan McGann and Jack Cronin. At the same time Joe Kelly and Mike Donlin jumped to Cincinnati. The year following, McGraw induced Billy Gilbert to quit Baltimore and join the Giants, while Mike Donlin came on from the Reds at the same time.

When McGraw came to New York the club was a hopeless tailender, but in 1903 the team finished a bang-up second to the Pirates, and in 1904 and 1905 they won the National League pennants, capturing the World's Series from the Athletics in 1905. McGraw piloted his teams to pennants in 1911, 1913, 1917 and 1921, defeating the Yankees last Fall in the World's Series.

Boston Woman Hires Man To Trash Her Hubby

If you can't do it yourself, girls, hire a strong-arm man to do it for you. This is what Mrs. Ella M. Whitehead did when her husband publicly insulted her. She hired John Harbrett, a Providence, R. I., strong-arm man, to give him a beating, and he did. Result: Hubby had her in court on an attempted murder charge, but she explained to the judge that she had no intention of assassinating him, but felt that he deserved a licking. The beating cost her a hundred dollars, and she says the satisfaction was worth double that sum.

Cornell Honors Soochow Graduate

(China Press Correspondence)
Soochow, Feb. 24.—News has just been received that Mr. Chenfu Francis Wu, who graduated from Soochow University with the degree of B. S. in 1917 and received the M. A. degree in 1919, has been elected President of the Entomological Seminary, which is composed of all the faculty members and graduate students in the Department of Entomology of Cornell University, Ithaca, New York.

After receiving his M. A. degree from the Department of Biology of Soochow University, Mr. Wu taught one year at St. John's University, and was then awarded a Graduate Fellowship from Tsinghua College, which entitled him to study two years in America. By reason of the character and thoroughness of his work, the authorities of Cornell allowed him to undertake the work for his Ph. D. degree in two years, and he now in sight of his goal. Last autumn, in a competitive examination, Mr. Wu was awarded a fellowship in the Department of Entomology at Cornell, which besides the honor, carries with it a substantial salary.

Mr. Wu will spend the early part of the summer in the Southern States making a special study of cotton, and will return to China at the end of the summer to accept the position of Assistant Provincial Entomologist of the Kiangsu Bureau of Entomology at Nanking.

Christian Tsuchun's Rule In Shensi Is Peaceful

(China Press Service)

Peking, Feb. 24.—General Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian tuchun of the province of Shensi, is actively and sincerely governing his territory in the interests of his people and is making great strides towards the pacification and unity of Shensi, according to Mr. Robert R. Galley, General Secretary of the Peking Y. M. C. A., who has just returned from a trip to Siafa made at the request of General Feng.

Mr. Galley said that he had been very favorably impressed with the work that Feng had already done in restoring order from the chaotic condition in which Shensi had been when he was appointed tuchun, with the general's plan for the future development of the province, and with the remarkable morale and spirit of the troops under General Feng's command.

When asked about the reports which have been coming from Shensi in regard to anti-foreign feeling, Mr. Galley said that while there may have been some foundation for these stories, he believed them grossly exaggerated and that now at any rate there was no evidence of any such feeling. General Feng himself, far from adopting the anti-foreign attitude which he has been reported to hold, is keenly interested in everything foreign according to Mr. Galley and his pet scheme at present is the formation of a Chinese-American Society.

The idea behind the formation of such an organization in Shensi would be the promotion of American business interests in the province and the dissemination of information about the opportunities and fields for development open to foreign traders and business men. The tuchun is fully appreciative of the necessity of introducing foreign ideas and foreign customs among his people and this whole question was one which he wished to discuss with Mr. Galley.

SUBDUING THE HSIENS
The immediate problem which faced General Feng on his assumption of office and which he is still facing, is that of bringing order into Shensi. At present, of the ninety-seven hsien in the province all but some nine or ten are under his control; this pacification having been effected in spite of the opposition of the former tuchun, Chen Hsu-fan, and the disturbances caused by the activities of Yu Yo-jen, an adherent of Dr. Sun Yat-sen and the South.

The chief difficulty which General Feng has experienced in his effort to disband these troops and bring peace into the province, has been that he is totally without funds to carry on his operations. The government troops which he commands are the 11th, 20th, and 7th divisions—some 60,000 men—and for a year and a half they have been without pay. The expense of maintaining such an army amounts to $50,000 a month and like returns are almost the governor's sole source of revenue for meeting this drive upon his treasury.

Despite difficulties General Feng is bringing order into the province and maintaining that order when once it is established. He is confident that he will soon have the whole province enjoying peaceful development and allows himself six months more for the final pacification of all the Shensi hsien.

When this restoration is effected the tuchun has many plans for development of Shensi along every line and particularly that of using its natural resources. Improvement of the means of communication is one of the first items on his program with the building of roads and even the installation of light draft boats for river traffic. Shensi is wonderfully rich in all manner of products including the best cotton grown in China and that very valuable natural resource, lumber. As soon as order is extended throughout the whole 97 hsien General Feng, said Mr. Galley, will turn his attention to these problems and endeavor with foreign help to make the most of Shensi's natural wealth.

FINE MORALE OF ARMY

Mr. Galley said that what particularly impressed him, what more than anything else represented the Christian general, was the morale and spirit which he had instilled into his own particular troops, the 11th division. Powerless to pay them for eighteen months, with no hold on them other than that of his own personality, General Feng has yet kept his men through their personal loyalty to him and their belief in his integrity and fair dealing.

As Galley said, they know that General Feng will pay them as soon as he himself has any money and in the meantime are willing to serve him and believe in him. Their morale and discipline are remarkably good and during Mr. Galley's visit not one of the ten thousand men in this division was under arrest. Over half of them are baptized Christians.

On his return to Peking Mr. Galley stopped at Loyang to see General Wu Pei-fu of whom General Feng is a strong backer and active partisan. Again he was favorably impressed and while with neither man did Mr. Galley discuss the political issues of the Central Government, the idea that he gained of both Feng and Wu was that they knew what they were about and were working toward what they believed were the best interests of the people of China.

While at Loyang Mr. Galley was taken by General Wu to his review of his troops and afterwards lunched with him and his staff. The directness of the inspector general, his dispatch and efficiency, and his interest in the people, marked him in Mr. Galley's eyes, as a force to be reckoned with in the Chinese situation.

MOTHERS' DEPT. OF WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS TODAY

This morning at ten o'clock at the Carlton Cafe the Mothers' Department of the American Woman's Club will hear the long promised paper on "Discipline," written by Mrs. Henry S. Houghton of Peking and read by Mrs. Fred Sites. All interested are invited to attend.

On Friday, March 3, at 4:30 o'clock in the Royal Asiatic Society's room, Dr. Frank Rawlinson will address the Literary Department of the American Woman's Club on "The Early Religion of China." To formulate the original religion of China since no religious system has been preserved in writing and perhaps has never been definitely formulated is an extremely difficult undertaking. Confucius himself refers to a religion antedating his presentation of the moral code and assumes certain conceptions such as spirits and a supreme being. Dr. Rawlinson has made an extended study of the references to theology contained in Chinese writings on philosophy, history and poetry and from this internal evidence has constructed the early expression of Chinese religious principles. The department invites all who wish to hear this important lecture to attend Friday's meeting.

Three New Chinese Banks To Open Here

Three new Chinese banks, the aggregate capitalisation of two of which will amount to $3,500,000, are to be established here in the near future, according to the Chinese press.

The Tung Nan Chih Yeh Yin Hsiang—Horticultural Bank of the Southeast—it is stated will be opened on the 3rd of the 4th moon with a capitalisation of $2,000,000, twenty-five percent of which is said to have been already subscribed.

Fukien merchants of Shanghai are announced to have organized the second of the new banks, to be known as the Yu Dah Bank, with a capital of $1,500,000. It is expected to be inaugurated in the 4th or 5th moon. The third bank is to be established by local tea merchants and will have as its main function the development of the tea industry.

ROLL-A-SUICIDE

(Reuters Service)
London, Feb. 27.—At the inquest on Mr. George Croll, the Director of Harrisons and Crosfield, who was killed by a train at South Kensington Station a few days ago, the evidence showed that the deceased was suffering from neurasthenia, as the result of overwork during the war.

He was also worried by the depressing state of the rubber industry, although his own financial position was quite sound. A verdict of suicide was returned.

CHENGHSUEH MEN TRYING TO BLOCK SUN'S EXPEDITION

Two leaders of the Chenghsueh faction, Mr. Kuo Chung-hsiu, former Minister of Agriculture and Commerce and Mr. Chang Yao-tseng, former Minister of Justice, will undertake to stop the punitive expedition of Dr. Sun Yat-sen against the North, according to the Dah Tong News Bureau. Kuo and Chang have approached President Hsu, former Premier Chin and General Tiao Kun and Wu Peifu for the sum of $1,000,000 with which to allenate the support being given to Dr. Sun by Szechuen, Hunan, Yunnan and Kwetchow.

The attitude of General Chao Hsiang-shi, the Hunan Tschun, is indefinite up to the present. The Chihli troops, stationed at Yochow, Hunan, have been instructed to establish a defensive line between Changsha and Yochow and considerable restlessness is being experienced in Changsha, where the residents are planning to welcome back their former Tschun, Tan Yekai, to take a definite stand in the internal conflict.

The vanguards of the punitive expedition, according to news received at a certain legation in Peking, have reached Chuanchow, Kwangsi, and Chenchow, Hunan.

'American Academy' New Name Of Former Tsingtau Institute

(China Press Correspondence)
Tsingtau, Feb. 21.—The school that was formerly the Tsingtau Institute has recently changed its name to the "American Academy," which latter name seems more fitting to its purpose.

When permission was first asked to organize the school, the school authorities were told by the Tsingtau Japanese Administration that it would take several months to get permission to start a regular school. The former, accordingly, took the alternative of organizing what was called an Institute, which has grown so steadily and shown such signs of ultimate success that the Government, after an inspection of the work and buildings, has now granted the school the right to change the name to "American Academy," and has thereby given the institution the full standing of a grade and high school. The new name is a distinctive one in China.

The students of the mechanical drawing class are now busy in a contest to see which one can submit the best monogram containing the initials of the new name. This will be used on school stationery, athletic suits, etc.

Plans are going forward for a school camp which will be held near Tsingtau during the months of July and August. Many boys, students of the school and others, have already asked to attend, and the camp leaders are now being selected. The latter will be boys' workers, physical directors, and teachers from various parts of China.

The world called that right.

Then she spurned the ties her husband had broken, shattered the lie that bound her, sought the aid of a decent man she loved.

And the world called that wrong. You who believe a woman has a heart, life of her own, judge.

But first see Hall Caine's mighty romance, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," a startling blow for justice to woman and for freedom from moral hypocrisy.

As a book, it has thrilled millions. As a picture, it will stir your soul. Come!

N. Y. K. PLANS READJUSTING OF FOREIGN SERVICE

In order to reorganise and re-furture its European fleet the N.Y.K. has officially announced its decision to remove the four large steamers Fushimi Maru, Suwa Maru, Kashima Maru and Matsuri Maru, all of over 10,000 tons, from the Pacific and add them to the Yokohama, London and Antwerp services. With the operation of these steamers on the line in addition to the new liner Shikoku Maru, which began its service last November and the Maru Maru and Hakosaki Maru, which are shortly to be commissioned, a uniform schedule will be maintained with 11 steamers of similar size and capacity, affording greater convenience and facilities to shippers and the general traveling public.

The four steamers to be taken off the Pacific were originally built to serve the European line, but during the time of submarine menace in the late war, the N.Y.K. transferred them to the safer North American route so as to protect them from that danger. It was the original intention of the company to restore the ships to the European line immediately the war terminated, but the plan has not been carried out until now.

With the shifting of the four large steamers from the Pacific to the Yokohama Maru, Shikoku Maru, Iyo Maru and Kaga Maru will take their place and maintain the North American line. All these vessels will be completely remodelled as trans-Pacific liners to carry only two classes of passengers, namely, first and third classes. The N.Y.K. plan to reconstruct their second and third class accommodations into third class, with a view to giving third class passengers greater comfort and convenience, even up to the standard of second class, and that at a low charge. It is the expressed desire of the N.Y.K. to offer trans-Pacific passengers substantial comfort rather than luxury on these steamers.

To meet the future development of Pacific trade, however, the N.Y.K. is now contemplating the construction of superior and luxurious passenger liners designed for the trans-Pacific service.

Peking Urges Private Control Of Kiaochow Ry.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Peking, Feb. 25.—The Peking Government has received the following communication from the Ministry of Communications:
"The Ministry of Communications telegraphed on February 14 to all the Provincial authorities, public bodies and prominent citizens of the country as follows: 'The Ministry sent out a circular telegram on January 14, also on February 1 of this year, signifying its intention to have the Kiaochow-Tsinan Railway redeemed and operated by the people. After learning from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs that an agreement had been reached, according to a cable from the Chinese Delegates at the Washington Conference, for the line to be redeemed by China with treasury notes, the Ministry wishes to restate to the public the desirability of private ownership and operation of this line by the people, in view of the fact that great interest has been shown by the public in this line and that the present opportunity should be made use of in developing the ability of the people in the way of management.'

"It has been the policy of this Ministry to encourage the private operation of railways in all possible ways, but so far the various private enterprises have not had as much success as might be expected. As the Kiaochow-Tsinan Railway is already in operation it becomes easier for the people to take it over and operate it with good profit, and the sincere hope is cherished that in the future this line can become a model private railway."

"The proposal of the Ministry of Communications for the redemption and operation of this line by the people was unanimously passed at the Cabinet meeting today and a joint petition to be submitted to the President for a public announcement of the decision. The Ministry wishes to inform the public of the result of this Cabinet meeting, and requests all concerned to do their utmost to devise means for raising the necessary funds for the redemption of the line."

The attention of the public is further called to the fact that beginning from February 21, 1922 any sale or use, as security, of the railway properties by any domestic or foreign organization is hereby declared void and not recognized by the Chinese Government.

The Political Unrest in Japan

EXACTLY how much of the so-called political unrest at present taking place in Japan is superficial and how much of it is genuine, is truly a difficult matter for any observer to solve. However, it goes without saying that for specific political reasons and purposes the Japanese Military Party will unfailingly lay the blame for all the trouble at the door of Bolshevism. This is their pet "herring" and it has succeeded in the past. It is still fresh in the memory of many how, at the time Japan evacuated her troops and civil population from the Amur region, quite a number of Japanese civilians walked up and down the platforms of the railroad station at Vladivostok, brandishing red flags and wearing red ribbons in their buttonholes, which display was intended to make the Russian population believe that even Japanese had become infected with Bolshevism.

Nor is this all. At First River (about 5 miles from Vladivostok) the Russian residents were surprised one morning to see a company of Japanese soldiers making a similar demonstration, which, however, resulted in the immediate dispatch of the would-be military Bolsheviki to Japan, presumably to be court-martialed.

These unique performances by the Japanese, at a time when the eyes of the world were watching them closely, served their purpose very well and Tokyo endorsed the policy of "sitting tight" on Siberian soil.

A few months after these incidents the Japanese Military Party pulled off its little "coup" of April, 1920, against the Russians. Experience has shown that the Vladivostok "know that the Japanese will stop at nothing—yes, even to the sacrifice of their own people's lives in order to gain their point, so that when one reads the report regarding the murder and snuff-taking in the House of Parliament during the debate on Universal Suffrage, it is necessary to look ahead a little and prepare for the forthcoming
"coup."

Naturally enough, the Military Party will miss no opportunity of scaring the leaders of Parliament into the belief that their country is in danger of becoming a hot bed of Bolshevism and, especially, in view of the approach of the wed army, every precaution must be adopted even to a repetition of the "coup."

The Chita forces may even yet be caught again in a trap as they were in April, 1920. Thus not to be caught becomes imperative when it is remembered how the Japanese Military Party fulfilled its part of the ignominious Russian agreement which it forced upon the Medvediev Government on April 29, 1920.

The records of the Russo-Japanese Commission are full of vital interest in this respect.
However, the Russians can scarcely forget the past. Students of the Russian Far Eastern question see clearly enough that the White Drive, engineered by the Japanese to serve the double purpose of squeezing Chita on the one hand into commercial and other agreements, and, on the other hand, to hoodwink Washington, has ignominiously failed on account of the fact that Washington has had its eyes opened in time and also on account of the determination on the part of the Chita representatives at the Dairen Conference not to yield to Japan.

As has always proved to be the case in the past, the fate of the Russian Far East depends exclusively on the policy of the Powers of Europe, so that one can expect to witness a temporary lull in activities until the decision of the Geneva Conference becomes known. There are evidences that the old saw, "Bolshevism," will be staged for all it is worth at the Conference. The Bolsheviki are even accused of fomenting the seamen's strike at Hongkong.

REGISTRATION OF SERVANTS

EDITOR, THE CHINA PRESS Sir—Conditions of life here are such that house servants are a dire necessity to all European and American residents. This being so the question of registration becomes a public and not a private one, ranking equally with other matters of public utility such as Light, Water and Transport.

Chinese householders employing their own nationals as domestic servants are in a position to ascertain the recent, if not the remote, history of the applicant for the post of general distributor, and to obtain satisfactory guarantees for more or less faithful service. Not only that, but they secure these services for a remuneration appreciably less than that paid by the foreigner. Chinese householders know market conditions intimately and prices of commodities to a "cash." They understand, too, that their menials expect a "squeeze" in accordance with immemorial custom, but they are able to keep this within reasonably strict limits and in terms of "cash" or "copper cents" and not in terms of "dollars," in which last-named denomination foreigners are mulcted.

The servants in a Chinese house also recognise quite well that they cannot squeeze above certain well-defined limits and "get away with it."

Resident foreigners have no reliable means of ascertaining even the past week's history of Pook Bah. In England no mistress would dream of engaging a servant without a "character" and it is the easiest thing in the world to trace the past history of "Mary Ann." Foreigners here ought certainly to be in a position to enjoy similar facilities.

In engaging a compradore for our commercial affairs we exact a formal and binding agreement plus some form of security. We engage our native staff through the com-pradore and hold him responsible for their delinquencies. Would you say that the compradore lost face by being obliged to put up security?

Further, cooks, boys, amahs, coolies, native storekeepers et al are practically at one in keeping the foreigner in the dark and rarely give each other away unless to pay off some personal grudge. "My no savvy" just about sums it up. They never do "savvy" when there is trouble in the air.

Chinese residents as a whole are out for our financial blood, and it behoves us to combine and promulate such protective regulations as will render it difficult or impossible for them to bleed us white.

Yours faithfully,
W. R. S.

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: In your issue of this morning, in reporting on certain proceedings taken yesterday in the Mixed Court in connection with the Continental Stock and Produce Exchange Co., a misstatement appeared to the effect that Mr. J. V. Pereira appeared as the Brazilian Vice-Consul. This is inaccurate, inasmuch as Mr.
Pereira holds no official position in this Consulate, and he made his appearance in the case simply as a Brazilian citizen on his own rights, that is, as a private individual.

Thanking you for the publication of the above, I am, Very respectfully,
Manoel Da Veiga Mendes, Consul for Brazil,
Shanghai, Feb. 28, 1922.

Internal Development China's Big Need

By IDA M. TARBELL

Washington, January 21—

The most difficult problem with which the conference for the limitation of armament has had to deal is China; the most difficult and the most disappointing to great numbers of Americans. We want China to have her own. We want her to be let alone, to run her government to suit herself, to be free from exploitation, duress, intrigue. As a people we want this very much. We come as near being sentimental over China as any nation can be over another.
We like the Chinese as a people.

We had consented to the transfer of the German rights in Shantung to Japan, as indeed we must do if war-time treaties were to be kept; there was a chorus of disapproval and we came to this conference resolved that Shantung should be restored to China; moreover, that a long list of inter-ferences with her freedom of administration should cease. The disappointment has come in finding that what China wanted, and we wanted her to have, was much more difficult to realize than we had anticipated, and that in a majority of cases probably the worst thing that could happen to China would be to have her full requests granted.

The primary difficulty in China's getting what she wants is that she has no stable government, nothing upon which she can depend and with which the nations can deal with any assurance that the engagements that are entered into will be faithfully carried out. The conference began with an exhibit of disorganization in the Peking government which was most unfortunate for China's hopes—the failure to pay a loan due us at that moment.

Moreover, it is a matter of common knowledge that the Peking government is failing to meet all sorts of financial obligations at home as well as abroad; that it is not paying the salaries of its officials and its school teachers. There are representatives here who claim to be as valid as the claim of many nations, ourselves included, to certain territories which we hold without dispute.

Japan points out that she spent
"blood and treasure" for Shantung, and this is true. And always when in the past men spent blood and treasure to wrest that which was not theirs from others,
the world has sanctioned their performance. Japan's right to Shantung is questioned now because of a new code we are trying to put in force. That is, men are trying to prove that it shall be no longer by blood and treasure that we progress, but by goodwill, fair dealing, superior efficiency of mind and hand.

The practical question seems to be, when is this new code to begin to operate? In 1922, as Japan wishes, or with the first entrance of the foreigner into China, as radical Chinese wished. And if it is to be adopted by the nations, is it to apply only to China? The code that would sweep Japan now entirely out of China would also sweep us out of the Philippines and Haiti, England out of India and Egypt. There are strong young nationalist parties today in the Philippines and in Haiti, in India and in Egypt, insisting by the arguments that the Chinese delegation in Washington are using, that the foreigners shall go; and in all of these countries as in China today, the reason given by the protecting—or invading—power, as you choose to regard it, that they stay, is that their going would be the worst thing in the world that could happen to the country.

In the case of Shantung and the twenty-one demands, the solution is going to depend how far Japan realizes that these valid claims of hers, that is valid under the old code, are handicaps and not advantages to her. How far she realizes that by attempting to keep them in force she is going to cripple her own real advancement in China, increase and prolong the boycott of her goods and incur the ill will of other nations, particularly of this nation.

Certainly we are not going to help China's case, or encourage Japan in generous dealing by continuing to cultivate mistrust and hatred of the Japanese. A systematic effort to make one nation hate another belongs to the old way of doing things. Indeed, it has been one of the chief methods by which we have thought to progress in the world. We built up distrust, dislike, suspicion, until we had created an enemy in the minds of the mass of the people, so hateful that it became an almost religious duty to overthrow
it.

BUILT UP HATREDS
We have had this sort of thing going on in this country in regard to Japan for years, a calculated, nation-wide extremely able effort to make the American people fear and despise the Japanese, to bring them to a point where they would gladly as a relief to their feelings, undertake a war against Japan.
I do not know that a sterner rebuke to the American public—the steamer because unconscious—
could have been given than a remark of Prince Tokugawa in one of his little talks before he sailed for home. He was telling how surprised as well as grateful the Japanese had been at American collect no more on her goods than she is allowed to collect on theirs.

EXTRATERRITORIALITY

When "on come to the question of extraterritoriality, by which is meant the establishment and conduct of judicial courts by foreigners in China, a humiliating condition that dates back almost to the beginning of her treaty relations with other countries, you find her own delegates asking no more than that "the powers cooperate with China in taking initial steps towards improving and eventually abolishing the existing system."

There is no real solution of most of the problems which the Chinese delegation have been plodding so eloquently and persistently in Washington to be solved, except the establishment within the country of a stable representative government. That is if the fine young Chinese that have represented their country here want to see their program carried out, they must go back to China and work within the country to secure order, education, development of their people along modern lines. There have been too many Chinese at the Washington conference who have spent the greater part of their lives in Europe and America and who are actually unfamiliar with home conditions.

A stable Chinese Republic depends then upon the long, faithful efforts at home as well as upon freedom from foreign interference. Not a few people came to this conference believing that the only problems was to explore the Japanese from Shantung and force her to withdraw her 21 demands. If China had had a strong united government in the past there would have been no Japanese now in Shantung, and no 21 demands. Shantung is, as a spot of war and under the old code by which the world has acquired power and possessions "belong" to Japan. That is, her claim to it is as valid as the claim of many nations, ourselves included, to certain territories which
we hold without dispute.

Japan points out that she spent
"blood and treasure" for Shan-
tung, and this is true. And always when in the past men spent

which was not theirs from others,
the world has sanctioned their performance. Japan's right to

buke to the American public—the
steamer because unconscious—
could have been given than a remark of Prince Tokugawa in one of his little talks before he sailed
for home. He was telling how surprised as well as grateful the Japanese had been at American hospitality, because," he said.

"When we came we feared that the Americans were so hostile to us that it might be impossible for us to go with safety on the streets."

Those who know the Orient best all agree that its future peace, and therefore the future peace of the world, depends largely upon Japan. She is the one strong, stable unified nation in the East.
She has, it is true, a powerful militaristic party, but opposed to that is a considerable liberal group.

Prince Tokugawa, who played so fine a part in his delegation here during the conference, is a man who has taken keen interest in labor questions, education of the people, the development of industry, and has thrown all his great interest against militarism.
It is said by those who know much of Japan that the Empress herself is convinced that either the empire must have a democratic leadership, a constitutional monarchy with a responsible cabinet, an army and navy under civil control, or that it will be overthrown, and that the reason that the young prince was sent on his visit to England was that he might have a look at a democratic monarchy. There are many Japanese saying openly in the press and in public assemblies that the future of Japan depends upon an entire change of policy, that the hard dealings in Korea, the wrest-ing of the twenty-one demands from Peking, the methods in Shantung have all been a mistake, that Japan must deny them, correct the wrongs done under them if she is to have the sympathy and enjoy the co-operation of the outside world.

It is most important that the people of the United States particularly should understand the liberal leanings in Japan, should give them all the support within their power, above all should not attempt so to force Japan's hand here at the conference as to strengthen the military feeling at home.

CAUSE OF IRRITATION

There has been much irritation at different times in Washington because the Japanese delegation insisted on holding up the march of negotiations until it could hear from Tokio, and between Tokio and poor cable connections the answers have been sometimes slow in coming. The delegation has always insisted on waiting, however, and in this it has been wise. It can go no farther safely than the government at home will back it. If it attempts to do so it will mean the final repudiation of the measures to which it has agreed. Certainly Americans should understand this. It may take time for the Japanese to stop at every point in the negotiations to consult their government, but it is a much safer method in the long run than making such haste that a situation can arise like that we have had between our own delegation and the President of the United States—the difference in the interpretation of the four-power pact, a difference which no doubt arose from a failure to see that the busy President did have in his head the exact meaning of the short and simple document really. It sometimes pays to make haste slowly.

If the Japanese are cautious in their dealings, haggle over details, are slow to make concessions which it is likely they intend all the time to make, give up nothing until they are sure they will be backed by the home government, it may be exasperat-ing, but it is not necessarily a proof of intrigue or of a lack of sympathy with the larger purposes of the conference.

In spite of these methods, so irritating to people whose only thought is to put things through in the shortest time possible, there is little question that the Japanese have made a better impression on the conference than the Chinese, for the simple reason that the one have been workers, the other talkers. More than once in the course of negotiations it has been necessary to recall the attention of the Chinese to the fact that what was under consideration was not theories, but conditions. All one's sympathies were with the talkers, and all one's practical sense with the patient workers.

OFFER EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

The nations in adopting the principles that they have in regard to China, in insuring her a protecting ring within which they promise to see that she has the chance to develop and maintain effective and stable government, and to give all nations an equal opportunity of carrying on commerce and industry with her, are attempting something that has never before been done in this world—they are insuring a great, weak, divided nation its chance. Never again under the protection adopted here, if the promises made are kept, can anybody chip off a piece of Chinese territory, secure a monopoly of her resources; never again can there be in China a Shantung, a twenty-one demands, a Port Arthur. The pacts and principles adopted here establish over China that "moral trusteeship" of which Mr. Hughes talks. They put upon all nations, and particularly upon this nation the obligation to see that this moral trust-ship is something more than a phrase.

Although the immediate results are not as sweeping and generous as many friends of China would desire, and many believe would have been possible and wise, they are substantial. She will control her own postoffices beginning January, 1923; the correction of the humiliating extraterritoriality is being undertaken; foreign troops will be withdrawn; a beginning at least toward tariff autonomy has been made; there will be settlement of the Shantung question and probably a withdrawal or at least a modification of the twenty-one demands.

It is a beginning. If young China will take hold vigorously now there is reason to believe that the things about her feet will in time be cut.
She has a long, slow work before her but she is assured sympathy and protection in carrying it on.

That is a vastly more important result than to have granted all the demands of her eager young democrats and left her alone in the world.

It is the old, old story—nations must climb step by step—they have no wings.

"All Women Primitive"—W. L. George

BY JOSEPH MIDVANEY

"Women are notorious liars!"
"Women cheat—but not much!"
"Every woman has a rival!"
"Every woman is primitive!"
"Call no woman frail until she is yours!"

Snapping off epigrams and aphorisms like that is mere recreation for W. L. George, the British novelist and feminist, who is starting on an American tour to discuss the intelligence of women. The difficulty in dealing with him is that immediately after making what sounds like a radical remark, he modifies it strategically, disarming criticism, turning anger into mirth.

Thus he confessed that he had a low opinion of the massed intelligence of woman, and as a woman rose in protest he explained suavely that the only thing he held lower was the intelligence of man.

QUALIFIED OPINION

So when he said that women are notorious liars, he blandly added: "And why not? What is truth? It may be only an opinion. Do we all not seek it only that we may avoid it?"

As comprehensively as I could grasp the logic of the author of "Urrula Trent" and "A Bed of Roses," the fundamental fault with woman's intelligence is—man! For he said:

"They say women jilt men and they do, but what of it? A girl and a youth become engaged, but cannot get married for lack of funds. The girl waits, then marries someone else. Why not? She cannot afford to wait, for she is growing older every year and her beauty is fading. Unless she marries reasonably soon, she may not marry at all. Certainly she will have no broad field for selection!"

"With the man, waiting is an advantage. He accumulates sense with the years and he has no beauty to lose. When he marries later, he will marry an older girl and that's better, isn't it? But a man should never jilt a girl. It is far better to make her jilt him. In that way, he retains her respect and gives her deep satisfaction."

WOMEN AND BETTING

Mr. George frankly confessed that he gave so much time to talking and writing about women because he loved them. He is a tall, spare, angular Londoner of the traditional type, with thin hair, wide mouth and clipped syllables. He is far more at ease writing than talking—and far more logical. In discussing femininity invariably he attacked first, then abruptly turned to the defense, and frequently concluded with a jest and an apology. Thus:

"They say women do not pay their bets, and of course they don't. But what would you have? No one expects a woman to pay a bet. She has been brought up in an atmosphere of bullying and cajolery and generally does what she is expected to do. Women, you know, are much more primitive than men. I really don't know just what I mean by that, but perhaps the women will! I only know that they are primitive. "Frailty, thy name is woman," said the poet, but I warn you to call no woman frail until she is yours."

Reverting suddenly to jilting, Mr. George remarked: "When women jilt they do it completely and at once. But a man, you see, does it by inches, like substituting the movies for the theater, and so on."

"Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof" is the motto of men, but for women sufficient for the moment is the evil thereof. Men sins in haste and repents at leisure, but women sins at leisure and repents when she is found out."

AS TO "REPENTANCE"

"Why not? Do not women endure enough boredom in a day to make men weep? When I think of the lives that men make women lead I wonder that there are so few divorces!"

But it is woman's inability to reason that leaves Mr. George quite agast. For this he can find neither explanation nor apology, and I gathered by the way he talked about it that maybe or maybe not indifference would be inconspicuous faults beside it. He put it this way: "Women believes argument reiterated often enough will be irresistible, like the little girl who asked her father to bring her a drink of water. He refused; she repeated the request until he said he would take a big stick to her, and she said: 'Well, will you bring a glass of water when you bring the stick?'"

"A woman whom I tried to interest in the Russian revolution, telling her of the capture of the Czar and the wiping out of the dynasty, replied: 'Yes, and isn't it too bad the Czar's son has measles?' I told a woman that women are superstitious and she said I was, too, and I denied it. I laughed because she wouldn't do anything important on Friday because she was afraid. She asked if I would fear being buried alive. When I said I would, she said I was equally superstitious because I was afraid of that."

"A woman who was engaged to be married told me in anger that an old flame of hers was going to wed. I asked what she was mad about, and said it was a rotten thing for him to do. When I asked if she was not doing the same thing she said: 'Oh, that's quite different.'"

Quoting Gladstone on Huxley, Mr. George asserted that woman's emotions too frequently eloped with her intellect. There were exceptions, he conceded, and tried to name them, citing Mrs. Edith Wharton, Mrs. Vernon Lee, Mrs. Curie and the late Hetty Green. He included Jane Addams, then struck out her name, saying she was "too passionate." As to the American woman, the novelist's ideas are pronounced but not always clear cut. For instance:

"American women, I have been told, differ from any other women anywhere. I fear I'll be told that I have traditionally British prewar ideas, and yet I
